

Music has always been a part of the Lack family. Scott and Paula were playing at coffee houses, churches, youth groups and other venues while their daughters were singing as loud as they could from the front row. Naturally, the girls started picking up different instruments, and when the chance came to fill in for a gig they were more than ready. They've been performing now for over seven years. Classic rock, and alternative rock music influenced the flavor of their songs which is why their style doesn't fit the traditional "Family Band" sound. You can check us out at:
